

Join the Planning and Conservation League Foundation for a workshop on the COMMUNITY GUIDE TO CEQA

Saturday, October 24, 2009
San Diego, California

To help local communities effectively participate in the environmental review process, the Planning and Conservation League Foundation developed the Community Guide to CEQA. The California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) requires that the environmental impacts of proposed development projects be rigorously evaluated, and that feasible mitigation measures or alternatives be adopted prior to project approval.

Since the Community Guide's original publication, there have been statutory changes and court decisions that have modified CEQA necessitating revisions to the Guide. The full color revised Community Guide features "What To Do" call outs with helpful tips.

The revised Community Guide to CEQA has an array of new material including a focus on Global Warming, Water Supply and Assessment and much more...

The Community Guide to CEQA will help you understand the CEQA process and empower you to participate.

The Workshop includes information on the following:

- How global warming fits into CEQA
- Projects subject to CEQA
- The responsibilities of agencies
- How to comment on an EIR
- A local example and much more!

Visit www.PCLFoundation.org to register or learn more!

PCLF invites interested individuals, non-profits and agency staff to learn about CEQA with an experienced environmental attorney at its workshop in San Diego:
